Tahrir tents come down

Formerly a rallying point for Saleh supporters, square in central Sana'a now vacant

Photos by Ryam Al-Qadi

Story by Ryam Al-Qadi and Sadeq Al-Wesabi

SANAA, May 5 – By Friday afternoon Tahrir Square was a version of its former self. Gone were the massive but tattered tents, diehard revolutionaries and portraits of former President Ali Abdullah Saleh that once lined an area famed as the headquarters of pro-government protesters during Yemen's popular uprising that began in early 2011.

Yemen's Military Committee and Central Security forces arrived at Tahrir in force in the early morning hours last week with a mission to clear the area, a decision officials say had been made weeks ago.

One man, Bashir Mohammed, who had set up camp in the square for over two years, described being woken up at dawn and asked to leave his tent and the premises. He said there was no prior warning of the evacuation but that most people left willingly at the armed state officials' request.

There were no reports of injuries or the use of force to remove the square's squatters.

Bulldozers from the Ministry of Public Works and staff from the Secretariat Capital's cleaning department were tasked with clearing debris and taking down tents protesters left behind.

Coming from Hajja governorate, a 37-year-old Khaled Al-Ashwal had stayed at Tahrir Square from February 2011 until last week. He said he dedicated his time to "defend constitutional legitimacy."

He spent most of his time with friends, also in support of Saleh. They played cards, smoked cigarettes and chewed qat, the green leaf that is habitually consumed by a majority of the Yemeni population.

Many commercial shop owners and employees near the square were relieved to see the tents dismantled.

An owner of a newspaper kiosk in the area spoke enthusiastically about the removal of the tents.

"All of my customers are pedestrians and drivers—but these tents blocked the road" he said. "Now, life has returned to the area. My work can resume."

Mohammed Noman Al-Doais who lives in Tahrir said he was happy to see the protesters go. "These tents and people were meaningless," he said.

"[While they were here] we weren't even able to park our cars and walk with our families."

But Abdul-Rahman Al-Asmie, a resident in the area, had another view.

"Those people didn't harm us. They never stole [anything] or broke into any homes," said Al-Samie. "Their demands should be put taken into consideration."

The number of protesters has dwindled since former President Saleh conceded his power to then Vice President Abdu Rabu Mansour Hadi via the internationally brokered Gulf Cooperation Council Initiative.

Once the deal was signed in November 2011, the pro-state protesters lost privileges—like food and pocket money—that they had grown accustomed to receiving from Saleh's political party, the General People's Congress in return for their support.

Amin Rajeh, the former head of the Supervisory Committee for Tahrir Square Tents, told the Yemen Times that Saleh had ordered protesters to fold up their tents and lift their sit-in eight months ago.

But, for protesters like Basheer Mohammed Saeed a 23-year-old, Tahrir Square had become his life and he believed in what he called peaceful protests.

"[Now] we may seek another way to protest," he said.

Photos by Ryam Al-Qadi

Numbers of protestors had dwindled in recent months, locals say. Now, life is "back to normal."

Soldiers in Marib defy senior officers

Rammah Al-Jubari

MARIB, May 5 — Soldiers from the Third Infantry Brigade were acting alone when they set up checkpoints on the outskirts of the northern city of Marib last week. Despite complaints from locals—and disapproval from senior officers—these unofficial military checkpoints are still in place.

Soldiers from the brigade disobeyed orders from their commander, Brigadier General Mansour Ayed, when they established roadblocks on main roads and the parameters of the city, where they say they are searching for Al-Qaeda suspects who may have killed four soldiers from the brigade last week.

Brigadier General Ameen Al-

Waeli, a military chief working in the area—but not affiliated with the rebels—said they are working towards reconciliation.

Al-Waeli said the men took the law into their own hands because “their colleagues were killed last week by terror groups.”

Ahmed Saeed, a political activist, said he met with the Third Infantry Brigade. They justified their acts by saying the state had not performed its duty quickly enough and the Ministry of Defense was not working to bring the supposed Al-Qaeda assailants to justice.

Al-Waeli said military leadership has, so far, not used force to bring the brigade back in line.

Nasser Al-Abeedi, a member of the Abeeda tribe, said soldiers in the brigade have been targeting local tribes, under the pretense they are affiliated with terrorist groups, a move that Al-Abeedi called “provocative.”

At checkpoints, anyone belonging to the tribes of Al-Ashraf or Abeeda are detained, Al-Abeedi said.

Brigadier Hameed Al-Dharab, the security manager of Marib, said the checkpoints have been set up without approval from the Ministry of Defense. Tribesmen have staged protests, asking the Ministry of Defense to intervene on their behalf.

Due to heavy rains in the past week 33 people—including 2 women and 10 children—have died in flooding across the country. The Yemeni Meteorology Center has forecast more heavy rainfall in the coming days and the Civil Defense Authority has asked citizens to cooperate with authorities in case of emergencies.

A group of 11 Yemeni fishermen who were caught illegally fishing in Sudanese territorial waters in September were released on Friday. Sudanese President Omar Al-Basheer granted the men amnesty after a diplomatic committee from Yemen visited Sudan. An authority at the Ministry of Fisheries said the fishermen are in transit back to Yemen.

On Friday, security forces in Dhamar captured a person accused of gunning down a security guard and stealing YR51 million, close to $240,000, from Aden Exchange Corporation in February. Abdulkareem Al-Odaini, Dhamar's security chief, said the accused had changed his name and was arrested in a house in Dhamar, where he admitted to his guilt. The man is currently in custody of Aden.

On Saturday, Parliament discussed doing away with Sana'a University's “parallel tuition” system, which allows students with lower than acceptable grades to enroll in classes on the condition that they will study with private instructors until they graduate at their own expense. Parliament asked the Higher Education Committee and the Youth and Sport Committee to prepare a report about the issue so lawmakers can vote on its constitutionality.

Yemen now has its first-ever air ambulances to assist people in hard-to-reach places during natural disasters. The new planes will be housed at Al-Dilmi Air-base in Sana'a. The Health Ministry has provided medical equipment and a team trained in emergency medicine for the planes.

According to statistics from the Interior Ministry, a reported 8,066 traffic accidents happened in 2012, killing 2,382 people dead and injuring 11,598 others injured. In light of this, on Saturday Yemen's Interior Minister, Health Minister and Sana'a's Mayor, began launching educational road safety campaigns in governorates across the nation in honor of Arab traffic week. Officials have been distributing brochures and running short public service announcements.

Arms seized in Taiz, but origin of weapons in question

Ali Ibrahim Al-Moshki

SANAA, May 5 — Security forces in Taiz arrested one suspect on Friday believed to be involved in an illegal arms shipment that came through Yemen last week in the Dobab district, a coastal area near Mocha Port in Taiz governorate.

On Thursday, a boat filled with an estimated 20,000 various arms entered into a two-hour long gunfight with security personnel as it pulled into harbor. One soldier was wounded in the clashes and all suspected smugglers fled the scene, according to Taiz security.

Mohammed Abdu Seed Al-Dambri was the suspect arrested the following day after an intensified security presence including the 17 Infantry Brigade searched for the alleged smugglers.

Colonel Eidi Al-Yusfi, Deputy Director of Taiz Security Operation, said Yemeni authorities believe the weapons are of Turkish manufacture, but could not confirm if the shipment came from Turkey or another country.

As of press time Turkey's ambassador to Yemen, Fazli Corman had not had any official contact with Yemeni authorities to determine where the shipment came from or if the weapons were Turkish-made.

“This doesn't look like shipment from Turkey at this point,” he said. “These are pistols that could have been transferred from one [Yemeni] shore to another or perhaps from another country.”

Al-Yusfi said the shipment had been handed over to the Interior Ministry for investigation to determine serial numbers of the weapons, models and producer, clues as to where the guns came from.

This is the third apprehended shipment this year that Yemeni

Increased security measures have resulted in the seizure of tens of thousands of illegal weapons.

authorities have connected to Turkey.

According to the Defense Ministry's website, this shipment comes a month and a half after confiscating 1,729 alleged Turkish-made weapons in Amran government.

Corman denied this shipment had any customs-link to Turkey.

However, in December, a shipment that came through Aden Port was full of guns hidden in biscuit containers. Part of the shipment was opened in December and part at the beginning of this year.

This shipment was determined to have originated in Turkey, Corman said. The guns were made using false brand names and this has slowed down investigations, the ambassador added.

“Yemen suffers from arms proliferation and we will be totally destroyed if the smuggled arms [continue to surface],” said Al-Yusfi.

A military expert, Mohsen Khasrof believes the smuggling of arms continues because only high-profile cases like that of an alleged Iranian arms seizure in March make international headlines.

However, Khasrof says an increase in arms seizures indicates that the increase in state security in coastal areas is working.

Four killed and six injured in ongoing tribal confrontations in Sana'a

Ali Ibrahim Al-Moshki

SANAA, May 5 — Tribal confrontations between the Bani Al-Harith tribe and the Bani Hushaish that broke out on Saturday in the northern area of Sana'a continue. Men began firing at each other after a member of the Bani Hushaish tribe was killed, breaking a truce called by sheikhs from both parties last week.

The two powerful tribes originally began attacking each other last week in a tribal dispute that claimed three lives and injured six injuries. All casualties were from the Bani Hushaish and details surrounding the original source of the dispute are unclear. Names of victims have not been released.

“Reconciliation needs a long time,” said Sheikh Yahiya Jameel, who is currently mediating between the two sides.

Although the tribes are firing at each other using machine guns and state officials have dispatched five military vehicles, Colonel Abdulla Muharam, the security manager of Bani Al-Harith said the state will not interfere until they are sure tribal mediation has failed.

Last week the road connecting Sana'a to Marib was blocked due to the clashes, but has now opened up again.

“We are afraid of the continuity of clashes,” said Emad Al-Najar, a local in the area who described the situation as tense and dangerous. “The state is not chasing the perpetrators.”

Locals say they expect the death toll to rise as they await the outcome of tribal medi-

Despite a truce between the tribes of Bani Al-Harith and Bani Hushaish, fighting has broken out again.

QATAR AIRWAYS' 787 DREAMLINER RETURNS TO SERVICE

Airline's Chief Executive Officer Akbar Al Baker on board first Flight from Doha To Dubai
Daily Dreamliner services on Doha – Dubai sector

Doha, QATAR – Qatar Airways has today resumed its Boeing 787 services after a worldwide grounding of the aircraft in January.

The airline's first Boeing 787 to be redeployed operated flight QR116 from Doha to Dubai today at 1315 hrs.

The airline's fleet of five Dreamliners was grounded earlier this year following a directive from both the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) in the United States and Qatar's Civil Aviation Authority.

Qatar Airways Chief Executive Officer Akbar Al Baker was the first passenger to board the airline's reinstated Dreamliner 787, joined by President Boeing Middle East Jeffrey Johnson, Boeing's Deputy Fleet Chief David Silver and a delegation of regional and international media.

Al Baker said he was delighted to be back on board the Dreamliner.

“I always said I would be the first to fly on Qatar Airways' 787 once it returned to service, and I'm thrilled that our Dreamliner fleet is back in the skies, providing our passengers with an unparalleled level of service and comfort,” he said.

“After a setback that not only affected our own worldwide operations, but those of many carriers worldwide, we look forward to now deploying the Dreamliner on other key routes over the coming weeks.

“I have always hailed the Dreamliner as the state-of-the-art aircraft destined to change the way people travel and I was delighted to be on board our first 787 to take to the air again.

“Throughout the grounding of our fleet we have worked closely with Boeing to monitor the situation and work towards getting our fleet up and running again.

“Safety has always been the number one priority for Qatar Airways and I have full confidence in the safety and security of this aircraft.”

President Boeing Middle East, Jeffrey Johnson said: “Today's flight is a tribute to the spirit of partnership, which led to the solution that made it possible.

“It is also testament to Qatar Airways' continued support for the 787 Dreamliner program and to the strength of its relationship with Boeing.”

Qatar Airways has seen rapid growth in just 16 years of operations, currently flying a modern fleet of 123 aircraft to 126 key business and leisure destinations across Europe, Middle East, Africa, Asia Pacific and The Americas.

Over the next few weeks and months, Qatar Airways will launch scheduled flights to a diverse portfolio of new routes, including Salalah, Oman (May 22); Basra, Iraq (June 3); Sulaymaniyah, Iraq (August 20); and Chengdu, China (September 3), with many more start-ups to be announced.

Community Livelihoods Project CHF International Education Sub Grant

Program Description: The Community Livelihoods Project (CLP) is intended to mitigate drivers of instability in eight governorates of Yemen by facilitating quality basic services, job creation and economic opportunities, responsive local governance, and active civic participation.

The objective of this sub-grant is to support the CLP basic education strategy through improved quality of basic education, improved academic performance and improved retention, especially for girls, through completion of the following activities:

1. Provision of TAK (Teacher Aid Kits) to Basic Education Schools: This activity will provide teachers with tools that will enable and encourage them to put in practice child-centered teaching methods.
2. TAK teacher training and follow-up support: The provision of TAK is not sufficient to encourage appropriate use of the material and teacher behavior change from black-board-based teaching practices to child-centered teaching practices.
3. Set up of school libraries in cluster schools: CHF will establish libraries in an estimated 134 cluster schools. Since the vast majority of the targeted children live in households where, for cultural and economic reasons, printed material (let alone computers) is simply not available, it will be the task of the education system to encourage the acquisition of reading skills and nurture the motivation to read to learn. This will create an environment conducive to learning.
4. Librarian training, support and follow-up: One librarian for each school will be trained in library management, record keeping and activities to carry out with children during library time.
5. Small infrastructure projects in targeted cluster schools: We will undertake small infrastructure projects in all 134 cluster schools selected for activity 3. Projects will focus on building/rehabilitation of hygienic facilities and school perimeter walls/fences.
6. Training for Fathers and Mothers Councils (F/MC) in school management and sanitation: This activity will include training for Fathers and Mothers Councils on how to effectively support school management and community and will also support the establishment of M/F councils where they do not currently exist in all 134 targeted cluster schools selected.

Political rants, love poems and curse words Graffiti in Sana'a: artistic expression or eyesore?

Story and photos by
Amal Al-Yarisi

Ahmed Adnan is a university student full of opinions. Whenever he wants to express one, he knows where to go.

He grabs a permanent marker and heads to his nearest city wall. He says writing in public spaces is the only way he can have his voice heard.

"I write what I want at night and in the morning no one knows that I did that," he said.

Adnan and countless others have grabbed pens, markers, spray paint and pieces of coal and turned cement city walls into their personal canvases.

All over Sana'a, walls are covered with swear words, political rants, poems, caricatures and other graffiti.

In bold lettering and bright colors, one prominent well-worn wall off of a main street reads, "You are the son of donkey." Someone else has written: "Don't throw trash here."

But there are also more poetic statements like, "You will remember me when I'm gone and cry about me for a long time."

On Al-Zira'a and Al-Daeri streets, which are located near Change Square, the headquarters of Yemen's popular uprising in 2011, the walls are awash with political rhetoric.

While some defend these "scribbled on walls" as artwork and self-expression, many see them as nothing more than an urban blemish.

"How do they benefit from this conduct? It is only an eyesore, particularly if there are swear words," said Abdulrahman Al-Ariqi, a resident of Al-Zira'a Street.

Not everyone appreciates the street art, which has grown following the 2011 uprising. One local calls the graffiti "an eyesore."

There is a general attitude in the city that people should not be defacing public property, so it makes Omar Al-Hakeemi, a private sector employee even madder when he sees other things people share—like currency and the seats of Yemen's minibuses known as debabs—also defaced with curse words.

"For me, I refuse to take any paper money that has markings," Al-Hakeemi said.

"Paper currency is not the proper place for people wanting to display their talents," he said as he pulled out a YR50 note from his pocket, covered in writing.

There is a law against defacing public walls but the office manager of the cleaning department at the capital city, Jamal Juhash, knows firsthand that this law is loosely enforced.

He says the majority of graffiti happens at night and thus perpetrators are hard to catch.

But, Dr. Salah Al-Deen Al-Jumaei, a psychiatrist, understands why people may resort to a form of public self-expression.

He says if they have no other place to cope with feelings, they will do so in a secretive manner where they can remain anonymous.

"Writing on the street walls is the only means these people have to say what they want," he said.

Yemen also has very high illiteracy rates with about one third of its adult population unable to read, according to the United Nations Development Program. Because of this, Al-Jumaei believes people seek out ways to articulate themselves and this can be done through drawing in public places.

There are some organized initiatives that are drawing on the walls in a deliberate design to draw attention to political issues.

"The Wall Remembers" campaign, created by artist Murad Subei runs along a main thoroughfare in Sana'a and has painted portraits of forcibly disappeared Yemenis on walls along with the dates of their disappearance and location, some dating back to the '70s.

A separate campaign, "Color Your Street Wall," began in 2011 following Yemen's popular uprising. It provided artists with tools including paint to decorate walls with themes of peace.

Themes of peace and unity take center stage

Story by Sarah Al-Zawqari

On Saturday, at the Cultural Center in Sana'a, an operetta was put on in honor of the ongoing National Dialogue Conference (NDC) and organized by the Ministry of Information, the Ministry of Youth and Sport and the Mayor's Office. Most of the participants were students, from the Queen Arwa School and the Mohammed Mahmoud Al Zubairi School.

Yasser Al-Roaini, the deputy secretary-general of the NDC, spoke before the show. Al-Roaini emphasized the NDC's importance in providing "a space for participants to express their opinions peacefully."

Alsaqqaf Omar Saleh, the composer and producer of the operetta said before the show, "I'm confident about our work, but I worry about the kids. They are nervous. But I believe the more mistakes they make on stage the cuter they look."

Mohammed Humood Mohammed, a music teacher in Queen Arwa School and Al Zubairi School directed and choreographed the stage performance.

Mohammed said he was pleased with the children's performance. The show's young actors were dressed symbolically.

"I chose this imagery to express peace," Mohammed said. "This is why I used butterflies, flowers, white costumes, and set a dove free."

After the show, excited performers spoke almost in unison.

"We are so happy, we are proud, we want to do this one more time," they said.

A dove was set free at the conclusion of the performance, as a symbol of peace.

"I am terrified and nervous," said Salwa Mohammed Ali, dressed in pink and white, before the show began. She had to convince her parents to let her participate in the show.

Students of all ages took to the stage to try out their acting and singing skills.

One young participants celebrated her performance backstage with Yemeni flags.

Judge Mohammed Hussein Al-Hakimi to the Yemen Times:

“Electoral registration has been a matter of dispute in the past. If it isn’t prepared well, it will stay that way.”

To keep pace with Yemen’s political transition period and to pave the way for national elections slated for February 2014, major political parties agreed to make the current electoral registry electronic. This large undertaking has encountered obstacles, including a scramble for funding and a short timeframe for implementation.

Judge Mohammed Hussein Al-Hakimi, head of the Supreme Committee for Elections and Referendum (SCER) who was assigned alongside a group of other judges to run the committee for the first time in 2010, speaks to the Yemen Times about the current status of the electronic registry.

Interview and photos by Mohammed Al-Hasani

First, as a judicial authority, how do you evaluate your experience in the Supreme Committee for Elections and Referendum (SCER)?

As judges we had a good experience. [Our appointment] ended disagreements [as to whom would head SCER]. The local and international community believed it was a good solution to appoint judges [to oversee the committee] for elections in Yemen.

With a slight change in December, most members of the committee were reelected at that time. What are the main obstacles that have disappeared since the last elections?

There are always problems. I think the tasks given to the committee are difficult because it is preparing for more than one thing. In October 2013, the committee will prepare for a new constitution and will also prepare the new electronic electoral registry.

Why has the register been changed?

Actually, there are three main problems hindering democratic action in the country. There is a problem selecting an appropriate electoral system. Dealing with this has been delayed until a law for the upcoming elections is prepared after the constitution is finalized. Parliament will start preparing and discussing a new electoral law to be passed.

The second problem has been in the management of the SCER. [Now] political parties have agreed to allow independent judges manage it. The third problem is the [old] electoral registry, which has been rejected by all political parties. The international community recognizes this and has asserted the importance of providing a fair registry that is accepted by the local community.

Al-Hakimi is a member of the committee that has been tasked with ironing out the kinks in Yemen’s electoral process.

Do you mean that the current registry, under which the last elections were held, isn’t fair? No. The last elections were part of the reconciliatory process and only had one candidate. They were performed according to local and international stipulations to transfer power peacefully. Electing President Hadi was almost unanimous. It was only preparations for a transfer of power.

How was the [new] electronic registry selected?

Actually several ideas were considered, including continuing the use of the current registry. In order to mobilize reconciliation efforts, a workshop was organized under the auspices of the International Foundation for Electoral System (IFES) to discuss the best option.

Political parties, civil society organizations, donors, governmental bodies and everyone else concerned with electoral affairs [were involved]. We presented many options and stressed the importance to select a registry with national and international support. Eventually, everyone agreed on an electronic registry that uses biometric devices to identify people’s fingerprints and uses photos to prevent fraud.

Do you have sufficient experience to prepare and manage such a registry?

We received help from international experts because this field is new. The IFES and consultants in the United Nations supported the preparation of documents for the register. A [informational] document, which was distributed to all political parties, included the goals of the registry, its background, budget and all other related information. After that, we received feedback and proposals from the parties. We then moved to prepare for technical requirements of the system.

How did you coordinate with the Civil Status Authority and to what extent did you benefit from their experience with electronic cards and national numbers?

From the very beginning, we suggested we work in partnership with the Civil Status Authority.

Then we thought it’s better to take [already collected] information from the Civil Status Authority instead of spending large sums of money on new data collection. But then we realized, the information we collect can be provided to the authority so we will start from scratch and then give them the data.

We have heard the committee will create a temporary electoral identification card that will expire immediately after the election. Is this correct?

We are sorry that we cannot grant electoral identification cards during registration. If we were to provide electoral cards, we would need lots of machines to issue these cards. There are 5,620 voting centers in Yemen. The cost would be too much. We could barely afford the cost of these machines [besides the cards themselves]. So, we will give the voter a paper document that he or she can provide on election day to prove their registration.

What is the required support for an electoral list?

We prepared a budget. In the beginning, we did not think finances would be an obstacle. International pledges in the beginning were promising. We prepared necessary documents and were able to determine the number of the computers needed and the cost of the electoral committees’ education and training.

We had a dialogue with friends of the machines and equipment was estimated at $18 million, the companies would perhaps provide a lower [number]. On this basis, an amount would be saved. But there will be coordination with the United Nations.

Do you mean it will be controlled?

There will be coordination in this regard.

With respect to the government, has it been committed to providing required support?

We presented the [document about] the budget to the [government]. It was referred to the Cabinet and then to the Finance Minister. The technicians began to discuss the agendas of the budget. We will meet the Finance Minister to determine the cost and start implementation.

What will the effect be of the new electoral registry on the precision of the election process?

Electoral registration has been a matter of dispute in the past. If it isn’t prepared well, it will stay that way. The electoral registry is the most important step in the electoral process. I think if we have prepared a transparent registry, we will solve 60 percent of election-related problems in the country.

What about the obstacles in the law related to amendments about the electoral registry?

The current law has restrictions in in the United Nations so that they could help with the responsibility. They shouldered a part of the responsibility in the early presidential elections, providing education and training. We are inspired they are taking on the same responsibility now. We will be responsible for the operational cost of the registration process. We know about $36 million should be provided by the donors and the state is responsible for $63 million. But after we requested this amount from donors, friends in the United Nations said they would not be able to provide the whole amount. Tender announcements for funding were delayed until April 29.

Did the United Nations declare the tenders on your behalf?

Yes, on our behalf and on the behalf of the donors. These grants are donated by European countries and America as well as Gulf and Asian countries.

Some say after declaring the tender, the revenues of the fund will be larger than its offers. Can this be true?

Perhaps there will be a fluctuation between the fund estimated in the document and the money that will be actually spent. That is, if the budget terms of time. The registry needs law amendments to resolve all related problems.

Will the amendments change the registration process or the election process?

Yes, because we have long time tables. We cannot fulfill our pledges in the limited time we still have. We need to change the deadlines. We need to discuss the issue of appeals because if these things are referred to the court, they will need a long time. The electronic electoral registry is accurate and can help us resolve problems quickly.

Tell me more about financial difficulties.

The pending problem has to do with training. Friends in the United Nations promised they would cover the cost of the training and media outreach. If the cost of this business is not provided, we will ask the government to cover the deficiency.

Do you think there is still enough time to prepare the electoral register?

I think if things go smoothly, there is enough time. The opportunity is still standing to complete the electoral register before the scheduled 2014 elections.

رئيس اللجنة العليا للانتخابات:

سنعالج 60% من مشاكل الانتخابات في البلاد إذا أعدنا سجلا انتخابيا نظيفا

حاوره / محمد الحسني

مواكبةً لمرحلة الانتقال السياسي التي تمر بها اليمن ومخاضات ولادة الدولة المدنية الحديثة، التي ستكون الانتخابات بوابتها انفتحت الأطراف على تغيير السجل الانتخابي، كأحد أسس إجراء انتخابات نزيهة، لكن ثمة عوائق كثيرة تقف في طريق الإعداد لهذا السجل وللتحضير للانتخابات القادمة عامة.. تستضيف الصحيفة في هذا الحوار رئيس اللجنة العليا للانتخابات واستفتاء القاضي محمد حسين الحكيمي، الذي قضى قرار رئاسي باستمراره رئيساً للجنة، بعد أن تم تعيينه إلى جانب مجموعة من القضاة لإدارة اللجنة لأول مرة، في العام ٢٠١٠، حيث ناقش معه موضوع السجل الانتخابي ومعوقات إجراء الانتخابات القادمة فألى الحوار ..

بدايةً كيف تقيمون تجربتكم كسلطة قضائية في لجنة الانتخابات؟
اعتقد أنها كانت تجربة طيبة لنا كقضاة ووضعت حداً للخلافات والمحاكمات السياسية التي كانت ترافق مسار تشكيل اللجان الانتخابية من الأحزاب، وهي معالجة رأى المجتمع المحلي والدولي أنها مناسبة للعملية الانتخابية في اليمن.

بعد إعادة انتخاب أعضاء اللجنة في ديسمبر الماضي بتغيير طفيف ما هي أبرز العوائق التي شعرتم أنها رُحلت من الانتخابات الماضية؟

كل عمل لا بد أن ترافقه صعوبات أو بعض الإشكالات، واعتقد أن المهمة التي أنقبت على كاهل اللجنة ثقيلة نوعاً ما لأنها ستقوم بالتحضير لأكثر من عمل، حيث ستقوم بالتحضير للاستفتاء، وهذا سيكون في أكتوبر 2013 وأيضاً الإعداد للسجل الانتخابي الحديث.

لماذا تم تغيير السجل؟

لأنه في الواقع كان هناك ثلاث إشكالات رئيسية قائمة أمام طريق العمل الديمقراطي في البلاد أولاً في اختيار النظام الانتخابي الملائم، وهذا إلى إعداد قانون الانتخابات القادم الذي سيتم إعداده بعد الانتهاء من إعداد الدستور والاستفتاء عليه، حيث سيشرح مجلس النواب في إعداد قانون انتخابات جديد ومناقشته ومن ثم إقراره. وهذا القانون سيضمن ماهو النظام الانتخابي الملائم لليمن. والإشكالية الثانية كانت في الإدارة الانتخابية المتمثلة في اللجنة العليا للانتخابات، حيث اتفقت الأحزاب على أن يدير اللجنة قضاة مستقلون، أما الإشكالية الثالثة فكانت في السجل الانتخابي الذي ظل محل طعن من كل الأطراف السياسية، وهذا الطعن لقي صده في المجتمع الدولي الذي شدد على ضرورة أن يكون هناك سجل نظيف نزيه يحظى بإجماع المجتمع المحلي لكي تجرى على ضوءه كل الفعاليات الانتخابية.

لا: ليس لأنه كان غير نظيفاً أو غير نزيهاً.. الانتخابات الرئاسية الماضية كانت توافقية بمرشح واحد وتمت باشتراطات محلية ودولية بضرورة الانتقال السلمي والشعري للعملية السياسية من رئيس إلى آخر. وكان هناك شبه إجماع على المرشح الوحيد الذي كان الرئيس عبد ربه منصور هادي.. كان كل ما في الأمر ترتيبات لنقل السلطة فقط لا غير.

كيف وقع الاختيار على السجل الالكتروني؟

في الواقع كانت هناك عدة أطروحات من بينها الاستمرار بالسجل الانتخابي الحالي، لذلك ولحشد الوفاق المحلي والدولي نظمت اللجنة ورشة عمل برعاية المؤسسة الدولية للأنظمة الانتخابية (الإيفس) لمناقشة الخيار الأفضل وديعنا لها الأخوة في الأحزاب ومنظمات المجتمع المدني والمناخين والأطراف الحكومية وكل من يعنيه الشأن الانتخابي، وطرحنا لهم الخيارات وشددنا على ضرورة أن تخرج الورشة بخيار لنوع السجل يحظى بالإجماع الوطني والدعم الدولي. وكان طرح اللجنة بأن يكون السجل الكترونياً وكان لكل طرف وجهة نظر. وفي الأخير أجمع المشاركون

في الورشة على أن يكون السجل القادم سجلاً الكترونياً حديثاً تستخدم فيه أجهزة البيوماترك الحديثة المتعلقة بأخذ البصمة والصورة الحيوية والتي تساعدا على منع التكرار أو التزوير .

لكنكم لا تملكون الخبرة الكافية لإعداد وإدارة مثل هذا السجل؟

هذا صحيح لذلك استعنا بخبرات دولية، لأن هذا المجال جديد وكان لمؤسسة (الإيفس) السابق في هذا الموضوع، حيث دعمتنا في إعداد وثيقة السجل بالتشاور مع الأصدقاء في الأمم المتحدة، وتضمنت هذه الوثيقة التي وزعت على كل الأطراف من مناخين وأحزاب أهداف السجل والخلفية الخاصة به والمرحل التي ستعربها الميزانية المستخدمة الأجهزة المستخدمة وكل الأمور المتعلقة به، ومن ثم استمعنا إلى ملاحظات ومقترحات الأطراف، وبعدها انتقلنا إلى إعداد الوثيقة الخاصة بالمواصفات الفنية بالأجهزة والشروط الفنية.

ما مدى استفادتكم من تجربة الأحوال المدنية في البطاقة الآلية والرقم الوطني؟

نحن كنا نفضل أن نستقي بياناتنا ومعلوماتنا وسجلنا الانتخابي من الأحوال المدنية.. وهذا شأن معظم الدول في العالم أن السجل المدني هو الأساس في أخذ كل البيانات سواء كانت بيانات تتعلق بالوظيفة أو بالإحصاء السكاني أو بالسجل الانتخابي، لكن الذي حدث عندنا العكس أن البيانات المتوفرة لدى الأحوال المدنية في حدود 3 مليون ونصف مقارنة بالسجل الانتخابي الذي يتوقع أن يكون 13 مليون تشكل ربما أقل من الثلث لهذا في الواقع نحن لن نأخذ بياناتنا من الأحوال المدنية بل عندما نكمل عملنا ونتمي مشروعنا إنشاء الله سنسلم لهم بيانات من 10 - 13 مليون مواطن ليستفيدوا منها وهذا كان حرصنا الأساسي أن يستفيدوا من المخرج الذي سنتجه للجنة العليا للانتخابات من العملية الانتخابية.

سمعنا أن اللجنة ستمنح الناخبين أثناء التسجيل بطاقة، ستختلف فور انتهاء الانتخابات أي أن مجهودكم سيضيع، هل هذا صحيح؟

ماهي الرؤية التي خرجتم بها لدعم التوفير المطلوب لإعداد السجل الانتخابي؟

في الواقع نحن أعدنا الميزانية وأعدنا وثيقة مشروع بشكل اعتقدنا أنه يخدم السجل الانتخابي، وحقيقة لم يكون موضوع التمويل في بالنا أنه سيكون معقولا، كانت الوعود في بداية المرحلة مبشرة بخير وكان في تعامل قوي في الواقع، وقمنا بإعداد الوثيقة وعلى ضوءها حددنا كمية الأجهزة التي سنحتاجها والتكاليف الخاصة باللجان و

ومن ثم يتم تحليل تلك العطاءات وفحصها.

يعني أن صندوق الأمم المتحدة أنزل المناقصة بالنيابة عنكم؟

نعم بالنيابة عنا وعن المناخين باعتبار أن هذه المبالغ مجموعة من المنح التي تبرعت بها دول أوروبا وأمريكا وبعض دول الخليج والدول الآسيوية، حيث قدمت في صندوق الأمم المتحدة، وهي التي ستشرف عليها، وفقاً لما اتفقتنا عليه نحن في اللجنة العليا للانتخابات.

هناك من يقول أنه بعد إنزال المناقصة ستكون عائدات الصندوق بأكثر مما قدمه.. هل هذا صحيح؟

ربما سيكون هناك فارق ما بين المبالغ التي قدرت في الوثيقة في المواصفات الفنية وما بين المبالغ التي ستنفق حقيقة. يعني إذا كان رسم أن تكون ميزانية الأجهزة والمعدات في حدود 18 مليون دولار احتمال الشركات تقدم أقل من هذا فعلاً.

يعني سيتم التحكم به؟ سيتم التنسيق معهم بخصوصه.

بالنسبة للجانب الحكومي.. هل التزمت الحكومة بتوفير الدعم المطلوب منها؟

نحن قدمنا لهم الميزانية الخاصة بهم وتم إحالتها إلى مجلس الوزراء ثم أحييت إلى الأخ وزير المالية ثم بدأ الفنيون بمناقشة الجداول الخاصة بالميزانية وسلنتي وزير المالية لكي نحدد المبالغ بشكلها النهائي وبداية التنفيذ.

ماهو تأثير السجل الانتخابي على سلامة العملية الانتخابية إجمالاً؟

أستطيع القول أن السجل كان محل خلاف سابق وإذا لم يتم إعداده بشكل جيد سيظل محل خلاف قادم وهو كان من المشكلات التي ارتبطت بالعملية الديمقراطية في البلد وسبب رئيسي في ترحيل الأزمات خلال الفترة الماضية، وهو أهم مرحلة في العملية الانتخابية بالنسبة لنا، إذا استطعنا أن نعد سجلاً انتخابياً نظيفاً شفافاً صادقاً يحظى بدعم محلي ودولي اعتقد أنه سنعالج نحو 60% من مشاكل الانتخابات في البلاد.

ماذا بشأن عائق التعديلات القانونية، بالنسبة لإعداد السجل؟

هناك متطلب من متطلبات السجل هو إعداد التعديلات القانونية الخاصة به. ونحن قدمنا تصور في نوع هذا التعديل ومضمونه، وسيتم التقدم به إلى الحكومة، ومن ثم إلى مجلس النواب لإصدار تعديل قانوني يواكب العمل الذي نقوم به باعتبار أن القانون الآن فيه قيود كثيرة متعلقة بالزمن أيضاً عدم وضوح الرؤية في مدى علاقة هذا السجل بالأحوال المدنية ومدى حجية البيانات التي سنجعلها بالأحوال المدنية.. وعموماً السجل بحاجة إلى تعديل قانوني يعالج هذه المواضيع كاملة.

يعني تتعلق بالطريقة والنظام؟

نعم بالطريقة والنظام و المواعيد الزمنية بالإجراءات التنفيذية أيضاً لأنه لدينا مواعيد زمنية طويلة بالنسبة للسجل لا نستطيع الوفاء بها في ظل هذا الوقت الضيق المتبقي لنا: نحتاج إلى تعديل المواعيد القانونية نحتاج أيضاً إلى مناقشة موضوع الطعون ومن الذي سيبث فيها، لأنه إذا أحييت للمحاكم ستحتاج وقتاً طويلاً.. أنت تعرف إنه في النظام اليدوي عندما يكتشف أن هناك تكراراً كان يحال إلى المحكمة وهي تقرر الحذف أو عدمه وربما يطعن فيه في الاستئناف ثم يعود إلى اللجنة لكي تنفذه، وهذا كان يحتاج منا إلى وقت طويل. لكن مع السجل الالكتروني لن نكون متعجلين إلى كل هذه الإجراءات وهذه الفترة الطويلة، وربما تسند عملية المطابقة والحذف للجنة مباشرة، نظراً لعدة النظام الذي سيستخدم في إعداد السجل الالكتروني.

الآن إجمالاً هل مازال أزمة التمويل مستمرة أم هناك إنفراج؟

الآن توفير التمويل الخاص بالأجهزة والمعدات والنظام الانتخابي والسيرفرات.. هذه المبالغ التي كانت قرابة 24 مليون دولار تحمل الأصدقاء في الأمم المتحدة قرابة 18 مليون دولار بينما تحمل الأصدقاء في المؤسسة الدولية لدعم الأنظمة الانتخابية بدعم من الولايات المتحدة قرابة 4 ملايين دولار.. بالنسبة للأجهزة وحدات التسجيل والنظام والسيرفرات هذه أحلت ومازالت الإشكالية قائمة بالنسبة للتدريب، كان الأصدقاء في الأمم المتحدة قد وعدوا بأنهم سيقطعون تكاليف جزء كبير من التدريب والتوعية الإعلامية، ولكن في ظل العجز الواقع تخلوا عن مسؤوليتهم في ذلك وعدوا إذا توفر التمويل بأموالهم أن يقوموا بتغطية جزء من تمويل تكاليف التدريب والجانب التوعوي، وإذا لم يتوفر سنطرح الموضوع على الحكومة لتغطية العجز في التمويل في هذا الجانب.

هل تعتقدون أن الوقت مازال كافياً للإعداد للسجل وللحضير للانتخابات عامة؟

هل تعتقدون أن الوقت مازال كافياً للإعداد للسجل وللحضير للانتخابات عامة؟

هل تعتقد أن الأحزاب عامل مساعد أم معيق لعملكم في هذه الفترة؟

الأحزاب إذا أرادت ستكون عامل مساعد، والدليل على ذلك أنها بذلت جهداً طيباً أثناء الانتخابات الرئاسية الماضية وكانت عاملاً إيجابياً ومهماً في نجاحها.. هناك الآن شد وجذب بين الأحزاب هناك بعض الضغوط والإشكالات من قبيلهم: لكن أنا أتوقع أنه مهما كان سيتم تجاوز هذه الصعوبات ووضع معالجات خاصة بها لكي نستطيع فعلاً أن نعد السجل وأن نحضر للانتخابات والاستفتاء، ونحن على قلب رجل واحد ونستطيع أن نقدم عملاً يخدم البلاد.

في أحد اجتماعاتكم دعوتهم موظفي اللجنة إلى الالتزام بالنزاهة والاستقلال..ماذا يعني ذلك؟

في الحقيقة اللجنة ملزمة بأعضائها أن تكون محايدة ومستقلة بنصوص القانون، وهذا لا جدال فيه لكن في الواقع نقلنا هذا الإلزام إلى

الإخوة الموظفين ودعونا إلى أن يكونوا على درجة عالية من النزاهة والاستقلال، على اعتبار أن الكادر الوظيفي داخل اللجنة محل شد وجذب ونقد من الأحزاب، فمنهم من يقول أن اللجنة العليا للانتخابات تشتغل بالفلول بالنظام السابق وأنها مازالت تعمل بأدوات قديمة ومنهم من يقول أننا نتجه لأخوة اللجنة وأنها نتجه لخدمة أحزاب أخرى.. طبعاً اللجنة عندما شكلت شكلت على كادر مياقارب من 650 إلى 712 موظفاً مابين موظفين ومدراء ومستشارين وكلاء.. وهذا الكادر نحن ورثناه من الفترات السابقة وليس لنا يد في وجوده.. واللجنة المشكلة من هيئة القضاة لم تستطع أن توظف موظفاً واحداً منذ أن وصلت، وهي حرصت منذ أن قادت اللجنة على أن تعالج إشكالات الكادر الموجود لديها سواء كانت مالية أو مهنية أو أي إشكالات أخرى.. أقولها لك بصراحة.. كادر اللجنة لا يحظى برضى وقبول من الأخوة في الأحزاب.. كل حزب يتجه إلى اتجاهه الآخر.. ونحن أبلغناهم بأن اللجنة لن تنجر إلى صراعاتهم وأنها ستعامل بقدر الإمكان بمهنية عالية وستعامل مع الموظفين على أنهم أبنائها. ومن سيخرج من الموظفين عن المهنية ستعامل اللجنة معه بقسوة.

أنت شخصياً كيف تعاملت مع الأصوات التي اتهمتكم بالانتماء في عملك لحزب معين؟

أنا قلت لهم هاتوا برهانكم إن كنتم صادقين.. ولا شك أن هذا العمل سيثار حوله العديد من الإشكالات.. لكن نحن نحاول أن نجسد أقوالنا أفعالنا.. نحاول أن نكون فعلاً مستقلين ومحايدين.. نحن في الأصل قضاة ولا يجوز لنا القانون الإنتماء لأي حزب.

كيف أثر التغيير السياسي على عملكم في اللجنة؟

ربما يكون أبرز دور اللجنة العليا للانتخابات، لكنه في الوقت ذاته ألقى عليها بالترامات من الضروري أن تكون مستقلة من الضروري أن تكون محايدة... لكن نحن نشعر أن المؤسسة الانتخابية مازالت وكأنها تابعة للمؤسسات السياسية ودورها يأتي ثانوي للعمل السياسي، والدليل على ذلك أنه ربما يحظى مؤتمر الحوار والفعاليات السياسية بأهمية ودعم أكثر مما تحظى به الانتخابات والمؤسسة الانتخابية.. ما زلنا نحسن أن العمل المهني يأتي في مرحلة ثانية بعد العمل السياسي.

هل تعتقدون أن الوقت مازال كافياً للإعداد للسجل وللحضير للانتخابات عامة؟

السجل الحالي ظل محل طعن من كل الأطراف السياسية

Amal al Yarisi

Every day, Abdullah Ahmed Al-Bahri walks the streets of Sana'a. Everywhere he goes, he plays his flute. Some days he walks for hours in the sun and though his face may look weary, his hands dance quickly over his musical instrument. A delightful melody rises up around him.

You can hear Al-Bahri from blocks away. He stops in specific places each day and plays a song. Passersby and locals gather to listen to his music. Once he's finished, his audience hands him change.

Al-Bahri is 62-years-old now. He began playing music when he was 15, growing up in a small village near the capital of Sana'a. He would spend his days working in the fields as a shepherd. The sounds of nature inspired him, he said.

“I listened to the murmur of water—it inspired me to play music,” Abdullah said.

To buy his first instrument, Abdullah sold a sheep from his father's flock. He lied to his dad, and told him that a wolf had eaten it.

With the money, Abdullah bought a flute. At first he would practice in private, hesitant to show people he was learning to play music.

But—gradually—he gained the confidence to share his music with the people around him.

Once a man from Sana'a Radio heard Abdullah playing and invited him to join the Music Institute in the Military Academy.

“The broadcaster encouraged me to register in an institute,” he said. “So, I went—and I was accepted.”

The Music Institute at the Military Academy trains young men to play for national occasions, like holidays or military inaugurations.

Abdullah thrived in this environment. He received scholarships to study abroad. He widened his horizons, traveling to Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Libya and Cairo.

He picked up the cornet, too and played this instrument for 20 years.

However, he says, playing the copper instrument had an adverse effect on his health. His teeth are stained by the metal. On doctor's orders, he has retired early.

At the age of 43, his formal music career was over.

But that doesn't mean he stopped playing—that was just the beginning of Abdullah's second career, this time on the street.

Today, Abdullah roams Sana'a, playing music to put a little extra money in his pocket. He has two wives and nine children and though he does receive a pension from the government—around YR27,000 a month, about $125—he says he needs additional income.

Abdullah has a set routine when he goes on his walks through the city. He takes specific streets and goes to neighborhoods where he knows he can draw an audience.

On Saturdays, Abdullah starts from the Medina Sakaniya, and heads to Bab Al-Balaqa area. Every Sunday, he begins in Al-Zomr and ends up in Sha'ob. And on Mondays he plays from Taiz Street all the way to Bab Al-Yemen.

Tuesday is a special day for Al-Bahri because he goes to Mujahid Street.

“I can get YR6,000 [about $28] from sheikhs who like listening to me,” Abdullah explained.

On Wednesdays, he heads to Al-Qasr Street and Kentucky roundabout. On Thursdays—his last day of work—he goes to Jamal Street, where he might earn YR7,000, or $33.

Friday is Abdullah's day of rest, and he always spends it with his second wife, who he recently married. He earned enough money from playing to afford the dowry, he explained.

“I saved YR360,000 [around $1,670] from playing. So I found a new wife, a beautiful woman.”

Abdullah is proud of his instrument, which has been custom-painted with the colors of the Yemeni flag. He has had this flute for the past 15 years.

Holding the instrument tenderly in his callused hands, he calls it the “most precious thing” he owns.

“I will never put aside this flute, no matter what happens.”
